Commission to the king's kinsmen John, duke of Norfolk, John, duke of Suffolk, and John de Warene, knight, and Miles Stapulton, knight, William Chamberleyn, knight, Henry None, Gilbert Debynham, John Tymperley, Richard Sorhewell, John Fyncheam, George Wyseman, John Twyer, William Rokwode and the sheriff of Norfolk to take the castle of Bokenham, co. Norfolk, into the king's hands and remove John Knyvet and William Knyvet, esquires, from the custody thereof and arrest and imprison any who resist. The said castle and the manors of Old Bokenham, New Bokenham, Tybenham, Bokenham Lathye and two parts of the manor of Gryshagh in Wymondham were taken into the hands of the late king by virtue of an inquisition made at Bedyngham on Thursday before All Saints, 39 Henry VI., before Richard Suthwell, late escheator in the county, but the said John and William Knyvet entered into the same on 17 November and have held them since. The king accordingly by letters patent ordered the said William, Gilbert, John, Richard, John, George, John and William and William Harleston, esquire, escheator of Norfolk, to take the same into his hands and remove the said John and William and their adherents; and the said Gilbert, John Twyer and Richard have certified in Chaucery that on Tuesday before St. Matthew last they entered the outer ward (custodiam) of the castle to the foot of a bridge called 'a draught brigge' across the water and found it raised so that they could not enter, and Alice, wife of the said John Knyvet, appeared in a little tower over the inner foot of the bridge, keeping the castle with slings, 'paveises,' faggots, timber and other armaments of war and assisted by William Toby of Old Bokenham, 'gentilman,' and others to the number of fifty persons, armed with swords, 'glayves,' bows and arrows, and addressed them as follows:—'Maister Twyer, ye be a justice of the pees and I require you to kepe the peas for I woll nott leve the possession of this castell to dye therefore, and if ye begyn to breke the peas or make any warre to gete the place of me I shall defende me, for lever I had in suche wyse to dye than to be slayne when my husband cometh home, for he charget me to kepe it,' so that they were unable to take the castle into the king's hands.

MEMBRANE 12.

July 6. It appears by an inquisition virtute officii taken at Bath, co. Somerset, Westminster. on 26 February, 38 Henry VI. before Peter Bamfeld, escheator in the county, and returned into the Exchequer, that Thomas Wattis of Knolle, co. Somerset, 'gentilman,' was seised of a messuage and 40 acres of land in Knolle and 20 acres of pasture in West Doulissh, co. Somerset, in his demesne as of fee, held of John Bolor as of his manor of Knolle, and that he died on 6 September then last past, and that Richard Wattis was his son and heir and was of the age of 20 years and an idiot from his birth; and afterwards the said Richard appeared before the king in Chancery at Westminster complaining that he had been expelled from the possession of the said tenements by the said escheator under colour of the said inquisition and by William Mountagu of Henley, esquire, under colour of letters patent dated 29 May, 38 Henry VI. being a grant to him of the custody, and that he was of sane mind and had always so been, and praying redress. And the king on 1 June last ordered the sheriff of the county to summon the said William to appear before him in Chancery in the octave of Midsummer to shew cause why the said letters should not be annulled and the said Richard restored to possession, and the sheriff returned that he had summoned the said William to appear as the writ demanded by John Knolles, William Flynt, Thomas Pyne and William Fry, good men of his bailiwick, but the said William did not appear. And accordingly by the advice of council, the king revokes the said letters patent and restores the said Richard to possession, with all issues and profits from the time of seizure.

March 18. Mandate to the escheator in the county of Middlesex for the restitution Westminster. of the temporalities of the Benedictine abbey of Westminster, to Dan George,

On 12 July, 2 Edward IV. by letters patent the king granted to Gerard de la Hay, one of the clerks of the Exchequer, and Richard Hamond the custody of the manors of Tudely and Lokerley, co. Southampton to hold for seven years from Easter then last past; and on 31 January last by letters patent he granted the said manors for life to John Rede, one of the yeomen of the crown, by the name of the manor of Queneecourte with its appurtenances lying in the parish of Estoderley, co. Southampton, to the value of 22*l.* yearly. And the said John complained that he could not receive the issues but that the said Gerard and Richard prevented him under colour of the first letters patent, the manors being the same but known by different names, and prayed that the first letters should be revoked. The king on 3 November last ordered the sheriffs of London to summon the said Gerard and Richard before him in Chancery on the quinzaine of St. Hilary to show cause why the letters should not be revoked, and they returned that they had summoned them by Thomas Kyrton, Richard Grene, Robert Orcheverd and John Sherde, good men of their bailiwick, but at the said time the said Gerard and Richard did not appear. And accordingly by the advice of the king's justices and others of his council the said letters patent to the said Gerard and Richard were revoked and annulled.

Grant to John, abbot of the monastery of St. Albans, and John, the prior and the convent of the house and church of Tynemouth, which is a cell of the said monastery, in interpretation of charters of Richard I. and other kings, the terms of which are obscure, that they shall have return and execution of writs within the lordships of the prior and convent, chattels of outlaws, felons and fugitives, and all fines, amercements, ransoms, issues, forfeitures, year, day, strip and waste, deodands, treasure-trove and wreck of sea where the sea ebbs and flows and over all their lands. And whereas by statute in Parliament at York, 9 Edward III. it was ordained that all merchants and others coming to any place within the realm should sell their merchandise freely; and whereas the said abbot, prior and convent have coal and white salt on the north of the river Tyne which would be a great profit to the church of Tynmouth if they might sell them, but the men of Newcastle-upon-Tyne hinder merchants from coming within the said river to sell necessaries to the abbot, prior and convent or to buy coal, salt or other goods and impose heavy dues, and do not allow the latter to freight their own ships with coal, salt or other goods, the king grants that the said abbot, prior and convent may freely by all victuals, merchandise and necessaries for the safe-custody of the castle and priory of Tynmouth in the port and river of Tyne and unload ships and freight there at all times of the year without hindrance from the men of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, provided that they do not thus load wools, hides and wool-fells or other customable merchandise. And they and their tenants residing within the lordship of Tynmouth and at Shell may make defences 11¼ acres of pasture, 3 acres of wood and 8s. 10½d. rent called 'Clynton' in Little Hadham by Stortford, co. Hertford, of the grant of one Henry Clynton late of Little Hadham, and received the esplees and continued in the possession of the same until by virtue of an inquisition taken at Much Hadham, co. Hertford, on Wednesday before St. Matthew Apostle, 9 Henry IV. before William Clovyle, then escheator in the county of Hertford, it was found that one John Plukenet, convicted of high treason and outlawed, held in his demesne as of fee simple on Thursday in Whitsun week, 7 Henry IV. and afterwards divers lands in the town of Little Hadham called 'Clyntans' of the grant and enfeoffment of John Baryngton, esquire, and others, and afterwards on Tuesday before St. Matthew, 9 Henry IV., by virtue of another inquisition taken at Little Hadham on Berygrene, co.

Hertford, before William Clovyle, then escheator, it was found that one John Plukenet, convicted of high treason and outlawed, had on the day of his forfeiture, viz. Thursday in Whitsun week, 7 Henry IV., and afterwards a messuage, 18½ acres of arable land, 8 acres of meadow, 11¼ acres of pasture and 3 acres of wood in Little Hadham called 'Clyntons' of the grant and enfeoffment of John Baryngton, esquire, and others with 8s. 10½d. rent from divers tenants there, and afterwards by virtue of another inquisition taken at Ware, co. Hertford, on Tuesday in the fourth week of Lent, 11 Henry IV., before Thomas Aspell, then escheator in the county, it was found that one John Plukenet was seised on Thursday in Whitsun week, 7 Henry IV., of divers lands and tenements called 'Clyntons' in Little Hadham of the grant of the same John Baryngton, esquire; and that the lands mentioned are the same in each case and also the John Plukenet mentioned; and that the said John Baryngton was seised of the same until he was expelled from them by virtue of the said inquisitions and letters patent dated 31 January, 9 Henry IV. made for life to one John Rasshe, esquire; and that the said John Baryngton and John Rasshe are dead and the said lands have come to the hands of the king as true heir of Edward III. and Richard II., Henry VI. having been removed from the throne; and he prays that justice may be done to him. By K.

Indenture between the king and William, lord Hastynges, his chamberlain, ordaining the latter master and worker of the moneys of gold and silver and keeper of the 'eschaunge and cuteschaunge' in the Tower of London in England and Ireland and the town and marches of Calais. He shall make three kinds of gold money, one piece 'reunying for 8s. 1d. sterling' which shall be called the noble of gold, of which there shall be 50 in the pound of the weight of the Tower, and pieces of 4s. 2d. and 2s. 1d. sterling in like manner; and every pound weight of the Tower of the said moneys shall be worth 20l. 16s. 8d. and shall be of 23 carats 3½ grains fine: of the which moneys the king shall have of every pound weight 50s., whereof the warden, controller, clipper of the irons and clerk of the coins shall have their fees at the hands of the warden, and the said master shall take for his working of the coins and expenses of every pound weight 12d. and for the lack of every pound 10d. only and the moneyers shall take for their labour and waste 6d. of every pound only, and there shall remain to the merchant of every pound of fine gold and clean which he putteth to coin 18l. 6s. 8d. by number. The master shall be allowed at the assay a variation of the alloy of the eighth part of a carat in the pound, to be called 'remedye,' but otherwise shall melt and reforge defective money at his own cost. He shall make five kinds of silver money, a pound of which shall be worth 37s. 6d., viz. a piece of 4d. which shall be called a 'grote,' of which there shall be 112½ in the pound aforesaid, and pieces of half a 'grote,' a penny called a 'sterling,' a halfpenny and a farthing in like manner; and every pound of silver money shall weigh 11 ounces 2d. of sterlings of the weight of fine silver and 18 pennyweights of alloy, every penny containing 24 grains. Of every such pound, the king shall have 4s. 6d., whereof the master shall have over the wages of the warden, clipper of the irons and other officers aforesaid clearly 6d. by number, and for the lack of every pound 2d. and the moneyers shall have for plating, blanching, coining and waste 6d., and there shall remain to the merchant 33s. The 'remedye' shall be 2d. weight in every pound. Before issue of the whole sum made a noble's value in every 10 pounds of gold and 2s. value in every 100 pounds of silver, shall be put in a box sealed with the seals of the warden, master and controller and shut with three keys of which they each shall have one, and the said box shall be put in a coffer for safe keeping and opened every three months upon reasonable warning before certain lords of the council in the presence of the warden and master, at Westminster, and assay made by fire or touch. The master shall make a privy mark upon all moneys made by him and shall take gravers to grave the irons and the irons when they be clipped shall be delivered to the warden, and the clipper of the irons shall not clip elsewhere but in one house within the Tower. He shall receive gold and silver brought to the Tower at its true value, and in case of doubt the king's assayers shall determine the truth, for which two stones called 'touchez' and also 'nedlez' of gold shall be provided, and the balances and weights shall be amended from time to time. No money or bullion shall be taken out of the realm, except by special leave of the king, and no false or counterfeit money brought in under pain of forfeiture. The king confirms to the master and workers and other officers of the said mints all the charters granted to the moneymakers, who shall be ready to do their work at all times, and the master shall have all liberties and franchises as is contained in a patent made 6 August, 1 Edward IV. to the master and workers of the mint of Ireland, except that the irons shall be graven within the Tower always keeping the print with a 'scripture' to tell where the moneys be made as it is in all other places. And the said lord Hastings is ordained master of the 'eschaunges and outchaunges' in England, Ireland and Calais to be held in open places and high streets and shall pay for such 'eschaunge' good and true money, and shall bring all the gold and silver that he receives into the Tower to be made into money. And no person shall hold common exchange, privy or 'appert,' on pain of the forfeiture contained in the statute of 25 Edward III. of which forfeiture the said master shall have 12*d.* in the pound. And for the performance of the covenants aforesaid the said master has made oath in Chancery and has found horrows in 100*l.* each, viz. Ralph Hastynge of Kerby, co. Leicester, 'sqwyer,' Averay Corneburght, 'sqwyer,' William Stephens of London, 'gentilman,' Edmund Shawe, Robert Hill, 'goldsmythez,' Robert Broune, 'iremonger,' and Hugh Brice, 'goldesmyth, citizens of London. English. By p.s.

MEMBRANES 5 AND 4.

March 17.
Westminster.

Richard II. by letters patent committed to Thomas Trewyn, esquire, the custody of the manor of Woderewe, co. Wilts, for life, rendering 20 marks yearly at the Exchequer; and on 15 October, 16 Richard II. granted the said manor to him for life without rendering anything; and Henry IV. on 6 November, 1 Henry IV. by letters patent granted the manor to his esquire William Alyngton for life with housebote and haybote in the forest of Blakemore without rendering anything; and afterwards on 10 January, 2 Henry IV. by letters patent confirmed to Thomas Trewyn the said grant of 15 October.

By a fine levied in the court of Henry III. at Southampton from the day of the Purification of St. Mary, 56 Henry III. in one month before Master Roger de Seyton and his fellows, justices in eyre, between John Beseill and Margaret his wife, complainants, and Elias de Rabayne and Matilda his wife, deforciantes, by Roger Noreys put in their place, the said Elias and Matilda acknowledged that the manor of le Grave was the right of the said John and Margaret to hold to them and the heirs of the body of Margaret, at the rent of 1d. at Easter, with remainder to John for life and reversion to themselves and the heirs of Matilda; and on the representation of Peter Basell, kinsman and heir of the said Margaret, that the said John and Margaret died and the said Thomas Trewyn entered into and held the said manor contrary to the form of the said fine, king Henry IV. ordered the sheriff of Wilts to summon the said Thomas before the justices of the Bench at Westminster on a certain day. The sheriff returned that he had ordered Walter Wynneley, bailiff of the liberty of the prioress of Ambresbury of her hundred of Melkesham, who had return of writs and execution within the liberty, but the bailiff gave no response. The king then ordered the sheriff to summon the said Thomas by good men of the county to appear as above to show cause why the said manor should not remain to the said Peter as kinsman and heir of the said Margaret.

The said Peter appeared before the justices of the Bench by Richard Goole, his attorney, and the said Thomas by Nicholas Wotton, his attorney, and the sheriff by William Spendour and William Weston; and Peter said that he was son of Matthew, son of Peter, son of Edward, son of the said Margaret and her heir and claimed execution. And after adjournment Thomas said that Richard II. was seized of the said manor and committed it to him for life by letters patent dated 15 October, 16 Richard II. by the name of the manor of Woderewe, co. Wilts, and that Henry IV. confirmed the grant by letters patent dated 10 January, 2 Henry IV. both of which letters he produced, and an adjournment was made and the attorney of Peter told to sue before the king. And after further adjournments the said Peter and Thomas appeared by their attorneys and the king by writ close directed the justices to proceed according to the law and custom of the realm and do justice.

The said Peter claimed execution as before, and the said Thomas said that he ought not to have execution because by a writing produced, dated at Suthwerke, 19 January, 4 Henry IV. he released to Thomas and his heirs all right and claim that he had in the said manor by the name of the manor of la Grave in Woderowe alias the manor of Woderewe in the parish of Melkesham, co. Wilts. And Peter said that he should not be excluded from execution, because he was imprisoned by Thomas and others at Suthwerke, co. Surrey, until by drees he made the said writing. The sheriff of Sarrey was ordered to summon twelve men of the vicinage of Suthwerk before the justices, and these declared on their oath that the said Peter was imprisoned as above. The king by writ close ordered the justices to render judgement, and judgement was given that the said Peter should have execution of the said manor against the said Thomas.

And now on the part of Roger Tocotes, knight, and Elizabeth his wife, late the wife of William Beauchamp, knight, lord of St. Amand, the present king understands that the said Peter by the name of Peter Besil of Wodbull, co. Wilts, by a charter dated at Melkesham, 11 June, 9 Henry IV. granted the said manor by the name of the manor of la Grave alias Woderewe alias Queencourte in the parish of Melkesham to William Askam, John Dys, Roger Loughthugh, citizens of London, the said Thomas Trewyn by the name of Thomas Ailleward, esquire, and William Weston of the county of Wilts and the heirs and assigns of the said Thomas with lands, meadows, pastures, woods, mills, rents, services, wards, marriages, reliefs, heriots, escheats, courts and other commodities. And the said William Askam, John and Roger by a writing dated the octave of Martinmas, 11 Henry IV. released to the said William Weston of the parish of Melkesham all their right in the same; and the latter by a writing dated at Melkesham, 18 June, 13 Henry IV. released to the said Thomas and his heirs and assigns all his right in the same. The said Thomas by charter dated at Melkesham, Monday after Midsummer, 5 Henry V. granted the manor to Thomas Hanecok and Robert Croke and their heirs and assigns; and these by writing indentured dated at Woderewe, Thursday after All Saints, 6 Henry V. granted it to Elizabeth, late the wife of John Hamelyn, knight, and late the wife of the said Thomas Trewyn, for her life, with remainder to Walter Beauchamp, knight, and Elizabeth his wife and Robert Salman and their heirs and assigns. The said Walter and Robert died and afterwards the said Elizabeth, late the wife of John Hamelyn, died and the manor remained to Elizabeth, late the wife of Walter, who granted it to the said William Beauchamp, knight, and his assigns. He enfeoffed Nicholas Creklade, Walter Newman, chaplain, and William Mason of the same and they re-granted it to him and the said Elizabeth, then his wife, and the heirs of their bodies, with remainder to his right heirs. And they had issue one Richard Beauchamp, who still survives, and the said William Beauchamp died and the said Elizabeth held the manor and is still seised of it.

In consideration of the above the king confirms to the said Roger Tocotes, knight, and the said Elizabeth, now his wife, all the estate which they have in the said manor as in her right, and releases all his right and claim to the same to them and the heirs of the bodies of Elizabeth and the said William, her late husband, or, in default of such, to the heirs of the latter and also all debts, accounts, issues and forfeitures due to him.

- March 6. Exemplification, at the request of the king's kinswoman Alice, duchess Westminster of Suffolk, widow, the present tenant of the manor of Leyghtonbusard, of the tenor of a certificate of certain liberties allowed to the abbess of Fontévrault before Robert Arden and his fellows, justices in eyre in the county of Bedford in the year 4 Edward III. sent into the Chancery of Henry IV. by the treasurer and chamberlains and in the files of Chancery, as follows:—

The abbess of Fontévrault was summoned to answer the king by what warrant she claims to have divers specified liberties in her manor of Leyghtonbusard, and she came by John Spakman, her attorney, and says that as regards view of frank-pledge, waif and stray and a market on Tuesdays, she and her predecessors have always been seised of the same, and that as regards a fair for three days at the feast of St. Dunstan and free warren Henry III. by a charter which she produces granted the same to Mabel, sometime abbess of Fontévrault, and the nuns there, and as regards the other liberties she produces a charter of Edward II. reciting a charter of Edward I. confirming a charter of John granting the same. And Richard de Aldeburgh, appearing for the king, says that the liberties of view, waif, stray and infangenthef were not claimed in the last eyre, and the abbess cannot deny it and seeks to be admitted to claim them, offering to the king 20*s.*, and also to claim chattels of felons and fugitives and amercements of herself and her men, by virtue of a clause in the charter of John. And the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer certified an entry on the roll of 6 Henry III. in Warwick and Leicester thus:—Viccomes retornavit de vj. d. de francoplegio Willelmi de Merton pro fuga et de dimidia marca de villata de Galton pro receptamento et de xxxv. vjd. de catallis Umfridi le Sakeware utlaguti et dimidia marca de catallis Radulphi Doublesquiele in Sutton pro fuga et de dimidia marca de Johanne filio Gilberti pro disseisina in thesauro nichil et monialibus de Fonte Ebrulfi lvs. vjd. et quietus est, and judgment was given for the abbess for chattels of felons and fugitives. And the said Richard does not deny that the said amercements and other liberties were allowed in the last eyre, and judgment was given for her accordingly, but he pleads for the king that enquiry should be made whether she has pillory, tumbrel and gallows within the said view by reason of her liberty of infangenthef, whether she and her predecessors have used the said liberties, view, stray, warren, market and fair, and whether they have held the market and fair on other days than those granted in the charters. And jurors say on oath that the abbess and her predecessors have used the said view, stray, warren, market and fair and other liberties, and the abbess has not failed in the use of any except that she levied fines and amerements from transgressors of the assize of bread and ale to the sum of 1 mark in the case when they deserved to be punished by the pillory and tumbrel. And judgment was given that the said view should be taken into the king's hands, but afterwards it was re-granted to the abbess by fine of 20s, and judgment was given to her for the other liberties.
