PREFACE

As I prepared the preface for this document, I again reviewed the "Partial Genealogy of the Swetland Family", by B. S. Swetland, 1907, and the "Proceedings of the First Annual Meeting of the Swetland Family", 1896.

I was especially struck by comments from a paper delivered by Eli Swetland, grandson of Theophilus and son of Eli Swetland (see p. 37 of the enclosed) at the first meeting. Eli's comments, made in 1896, might well be taken as the lament of the contemporary amateur family genealogist. He said, in part: "I am very sorry I did not commence 30 or 40 years ago. Had I done so I would have had the assistance of older relatives. It is impossible to give a full history of all our people who have passed away long ago, as the records if they were preserved are not well kept. It is difficult to read these old records as the ink is faded and paper yellowed, the writing is so different...", words so familiar to anyone who has delved in any detail into historical records.

This document takes as its basis that the ancestor of all the families contained herein is one Isaac, born in England in 1560. His three sons, John, Thomas and James, came to this country some time before 1650. For all practical intents and purposes, the document is a presentation of information on the descendants of Isaac's son, John, since no information is available on the descendants of James, and the only information available on Thomas are the names and birthdates of his children.

Although the body of the document is 361 pages in length, it is as remarkable for what it does not contain as for what it does. Of the nine (9) children of John, son of Isaac, significant information exists on only two -- William, the eldest, and John Oliver, the fourth child.

The document might usefully be thought of as divided into three sections. The first section, which runs from the beginning to page 213, deals with the descendants of William Swetland, son of John, son of Isaac.

The basis for the first section is, of course, the "Partial Genealogy" by B. S. Swetland. In order to bring the information down to the present generation, I have heard from innumerable persons across the past six months and we are grateful to all of them. (It is ironic to me that after all the attention B.S.

Swetland paid to the compilation of a family history, we have nothing on his branch of the family past what is contain in the "Partial Genealogy". The same is true with respect to Eli Swetland (referred to above), since the last generation reported is the 10th.)

The second section of the document deals with the descendants of John Oliver, son of John, son of Isaac, which runs from page 214 to 335. The background materials for this section have no single source, but major credit must go to Leon Hiram Sweetland and his daughter, Emily (Sweetland) Putnam, and their descendants, as well as to Edwin and Ruth (Rowley) Sweetland and to their close relatives. The rather large section on the Estabrook family (pp. 217--274) was compiled independently of these sources and sent to me by Barbara Estabrook.

The last section of the document I have titled "Unconnected Lines". At the present time, there is no direct link between these family lines and the main "tree". It is hoped that with enough people aware of these lines, someone will come up with the "missing link" which will tie them to the family tree.

The structure of the document is quite straight-forward. Beginning with Isaac, each generation is assigned a successively higher number. Thus, Isaac has the number "1". His children (John, Thomas and James) are assigned the number "2", to indicate that they are of the second generation. John's children take on the number "3", to indicate that they are of the third generation, etc.

To further delineate individuals, within each family, I have assigned letters of the alphabet, with "a" indicating the oldest child and the highest letter indicating the youngest. Thus, Isaac had three children. John, the eldest, has the indicator "2a", meaning he is of the second generation (2) and the oldest child in the family (a), while James has the indicator "2c", meaning he is of the second generation (2) and is the third child in the family (c). Of John's children, William, the eldest, has the indicator "3a", indicating he is of the third generation (3) and is the oldest child in the family (a), while John Oliver, the fourth child in that family, has the indicator "3d", indicating third generation (3) and fourth child (d).

In using the document, please note that the names "Sweatland", "Sweetland" and "Swetland" do not appear, except in the unusual situation where one member of the family married another person by the same name. I have made no attempt to differentiate between the three spellings, since it seems to me and to others that it is all the same group. Documents exist where all three spellings exist on the same document with respect to the same nuclear family. In my case, the name is spelled with two "e's". However, I have documents from Hebron, CT, dealing with the family of Jonah, where the name is spelled with one "e" and with "ea", and I know I am a descendant of John's son, William Swetland.

To Assist the reader in going through the document, I have developed three "aids". Immediately prior to this Preface is a Table of Contents, listing all individuals in the first seven (7) generations, showing the individual, the generation, and the page number on which the main reference to that individual may be found. I would have done more, but I would have ended up with a Table of Contents which would have been much too long.

The second aid is the Index of Names at the end of the document (beginning on p. 362), where I have attempted to list every individual contained in the body of the document, in alphabetical order. In using the index, please note once again that the names Sweatland/Sweetland/Swetland do not appear except in the unusual situation cited above. Persons with these last names are in alphabetical order by first and middle names. Persons whose last names are different (e.g., Davis) are in alphabetical order by last name, and, within last name, by first and middle name. A series of dashes (----) means that a name is missing.

The third aid provided is within the body of the document itself, and consists of two different elements. For virtually all families which occupy more than two or three pages in the document, I have set up a section showing the page where the children may be found. For example, on page one (1), you find John, son of Isaac. Directly below his name, you find a listing of the names of his children, the dates of their bitths, and the page on which the major reference will be found.

The second assistance element I have included in the body is that for the first nine (9) generations I have inserted the ancestors of the individual, beginning with the parent, and running back to Isaac. Thus, for example, Isaac Whitney (see p. 3) has the designation "9d". Directly after his name, I have placed in parentheses his ancestry, beginning with his father, Aaron Whitney, and running back to Isaac. For further assistance, I have placed the page number where the parent may be found. I would have done this for all generations, but I did not feel it was really necessary, and, besides, it would have greatly increased the size of an already bulky document.

For generations beyond the ninth generation, I have indicated the relevant parent and the page on which that parent may be found, when I thought it necessary. For example, William Allen Wood, 12b (see p. 14), is followed by the name of his mother, Madelaine, and the page where she can be found (p. 14). Madelaine (11b) is followed by the name of her father, William (D)elbert and the page where he can be found (p. 13). William Delbert (10d) is followed by the name of his father, Ira (B)urnham (9d) and the page where he can be found (p. 12). Ira Burnham is of the ninth generation and following his name is the ancestry for the remaining generations back to Isaac.

(In obtaining the last "run" of this document from the computer, I inserted the page number references and in so doing, a "glitch" developed. The page number references themselves inserted several lines of type, and thus some of the references themselves are slightly off. To see the magnitude of the possible error, please refer to John (p. 1), son of Isaac. Under John are the names of his children. For example, the reference to John Oliver is as follows:

3d. John Oliver. Born in 1651. (p.213)

In actuality, John Oliver appears on p. 214. Thus, the person referred to may be as much as 1/2 page from where the body page reference says he/she should be. I apologize for this error, but to correct them would have required finding and changing several hundred page references and then re-running the document. At this point I do not feel it is worth the time and effort, since most references are correct. I would note that neither the Table of Contents nor the Index of Names suffer from this problem, since I changed the page references in those sections.

For those of you familiar with the organization of the "Partial Genealogy", I would note that the enclosed materials treat the children of William (see p. 1) differently than did B. S. Swetland. I have placed Benjamin as the oldest and Sarah as the second child, while he treats them as the youngest. I am basing this change on data supplied by Hazel Corbin, Mark Swetland, and others.

I have made several decisions on the placement of family lines which people may question. The first is the placement of Abner (see p. 53) and his descendants. I believe I have him placed correctly, but I am not sure. Further information may cause us to move this line.

The second questionable judgement that I have made is the placement of Ezra (see p. 72), son of Samuel (see p. 71). I have placed him where B. S. Swetland placed him. However, I and his descendants, Mary and John Thomas, and June and John Odell, are convinced that he is misplaced, given his date of birth. However, I have left him at that point for now.

The third and fourth individuals of whom I am less than positive I have placed correctly are Luman (see p. 170) and Alanson (see p. 177). These are both, I believe, sons of Jonah (see p. 133), but total proof is not yet available. However, Dewey Eldridge and I are convinced that they are sons of Jonah, and I have so placed them.

This manuscript is undoubtedly plagued with typing, spelling and other errors. It is almost inevitable when one is coordinating information from between 50 and 100 people, much of which is handwritten. I apologize in advance for the errors my proof-reading has missed. I ask the patience of the reader and ask that anyone discovering errors let me know. I will put out an errata to the document containing all errors that people have informed me of.

I further request that people who have further information on descendants of Isaac please forward that data to me. Now that we have gotten to this point, I wish to continue to expand the document with more information on historical generations, and information on new generations. I will put out periodic updates.

INTRODUCTION

The material in this writing purports to be an historical sketch of the development of the lineage of Isaac Swe(e)/atland. (Apparently, the family name has been spelled "Sweatland", "Sweetland", and "Swetland" by various groups of ancestors.)

Isaac's sons, John, Thomas and James, came to this country some time prior to 1650. Little is known of the descendants of Thomas, and no information has been unearthed about James' descendants.

It is known that Swe(e)/atlands in numbers settled in the states of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and eastern New York. Their descendants moved into western New York and Pennsylvania, and from there joined in the great westward march across the country, forming a core of the great frontier of this nation, with early descendants among the first settlers in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Iowa, Nebraska and Dakota Territory. They were among the early English-speaking settlers in California and the Southwest. Early records of Isaac's descendants can be found also in Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Washington. They participated in the California Gold Rush.

The Swe(e)/atlands have been a part of the fabric of this society. Swe(e)/atlands have fought, suffered and died in every war engaged in by this country (with the possible exception of the Mexican War). Prior to that they fought on the British side in the French and Indian Wars.

Descendants of Isaac seem to have peopled two of the white-collar professions in numbers disproportionately large in comparison to their numbers. The first of these is the medical profession. As one runs through this family history, one cannot help but be struck by the number of medical doctors (and more recently, Chiropractors), nurses and other medical personnel coming out of the family.

The other white-collar profession peopled heavily by the descendants of Isaac is the printing and publishing professions. Involvement in this profession began with the early descendants and continues up to the current period.

Education has been a hallmark of the family, with large numbers going on to post-secondary educational institutions, and many staying in the teaching profession. Numbers have gone on past the Bachelor's degree to obtain their Master's degree and Doctorate (Ph. D.).

A seeming anomaly to this writer is the apparent lack of multiple births throughout the family history. In 361 pages, only one set of triplets is found (and that in the current generation) and very few sets of twins.

(I beg the indulgence of the reader for including eulogies to my parents and brother, Bill. My sister Marge and I began this project as a sort of a memorial to our parents and by the time I remembered that the information was still in this document, it was too late to take it out without invalidating all of the page references following that material.)

5k. Luke (the Captive). John (p.6), William, John, Isaac) Born June 16, 1729, at Lebanon, New London County, CT. He was known and is designated as "The Seneca Captive" because he was captured and adopted by the Senecas after the Wyoming Massacre, July, 1778, and was taken to Appletown (now Rumulus, NY) and kept a year and two days before he escaped. He afterwards wrote and published an account of his capture and adoption. Died January 30, 1823, age 93 years, 6 months. Married Hannah Tiffany (born April 8, 1738; died January 8, 1809, age 70 years, 9 months) on April 1, 1762, at Windham, CT (at Warren Township, Litchfield County, CT?). Both Luke and Hannah are buried at Forty Fort, PA.

Wyoming Valley, PA, contributed two companies and smaller detachments to the Continental Army of 1777. The companies were commanded by Captains Robert Durkee and Samuel Ransom.

Luke Swe(e)tland, after removing his family to CT, enlisted in Captain Durkee's company. They joined Washington's Army and engaged in the "Affairs" of Millston River and Bound Brook in NJ, and in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown in PA. The companies wintered at Valley Forge, 1777-78, with the CT regiments, Wyoming, PA being considered as part of CT at that time.

In the spring of 1778, rumors of a threatened Indian attack upon Wyoming reached camp and Captains Durkee and Ransom resigned their commissions to return to assist in the protection of their homes. A few of the men also returned. Luke, who had been discharged January 8, joined them. The companies, such as remained with the army, were consolidated under one by act of Congress, June 23, 1778, with Captain Spaulding in command. They were ordered to Wyoming, but did not reach there until after the massacre. When it was decided to go out from the fort, or stockade, to attack the enemy, Luke with three others were assigned by lot the unpleasant task of remaining behind to guard the fort.

After his escape from the Indians, which was on Sunday, September 5, 1779, he returned to Wyoming, and on to CT, and returned to Wyoming with his family in 1780, where he remained until his death. In the year 1818, CT passed an act granting pensions to soldiers from that state residing in PA. In the list of pensioners under this act we find the name of Luke Swe(e)tland, Private. His height at the time of enlistment is given as 5 feet, 5 in.

Luke first went to Wyoming Valley, PA, in July, 1772, and became an owner of a right in the Susquehanna Company. He was allotted land in Kingston Township. In March, 1774, he was elected "Tithing Man", presumably for Kingston. Served as Private in the First Independent Company, commanded by Captain Durkee, in the CT Continental Line, from September, 1776, to January 8, 1778. His name appears in the Muster Roll of Detachment of the 24th CT Regiment of Militia, commanded by Zebulon Butler, on duty after June 28, 1778, and before October 1, 1778. He took part in the Battle of Wyoming (July 3, 1778). Following the flight of survivors, he returned to Wyoming Valley August 4, 1778, a member of Colonel Butler's 24th CT Militia. On August 25, 1778, with Joseph Blanchard, was captured by Indians near Nanticoke Falls, Newport Township. Taken a prisoner to "Appletown", a Seneca village, near Seneca Lake, NY. In September, 1779, escaped and reached advanced units of General Sullivan's Army. Accompanied Army back to Wilkes-Barre and went to family at Kent, CT. Remained there until 1786-87. Returned to Wyoming Valley prior to August 21, 1778. Employed as surveyor by "road viewers" for Plymouth Township. Heirship of Swetland lands was conveyed from Luke's sons Artemas and Belding to their brother, Joseph, on July 10, 1795. On November 18, 1796, Luke purchased the lot to which he moved in 1796-1797, which became the "Swetland Homestead". Joseph's brother Belding purchased the right of heirship in Luke's property and was confirmed by Luke on August 3, 1803. Luke became a pensioner ($96/year) beginning April 27, 1818, for services in the Revolutionary War.

On February 13, 1704, he was married to Mercy Babcock, of Milton (born March 15, 1679; daughter of Jonathan (baptized March 1, 1651/1652) and Mary (Babcock) (born January 19, 1653) Babcock) at Milton, MA. "November 12, 1717, Joseph Swe(e)tland and Mercy his wife and Mary Sprague yer sister had a letter of Dismission from Milton Chh to ye Chh of Lebanon." Joseph was at Hebron, CT, as early as 1718, as land transactions records will witness. Captain Joseph was a clothier and owned a fulling mill at Andover, CT. He deeded the fulling mill to his sons Joseph and Peter.

Joseph must have been a man who was "well to do", as they said in those days, as we find in the rate bill of the North Parish Church of Lebanon, Conn (now Columbia), he was assessed for the year 1741, to pay the salary of Rev. Eleazer Wheelock (later, the founder of Dartmouth College) 2 pounds, 12s, 02d. In the Connecticut Colony Records, May 10, 1773, we find that Joseph Swe(e)tland was a Representative or Deputy for the Town of Hebron in the Assembly; also that he was established and confirmed as Lieutenant of the North Company in 1730, and that in October, 1736, "This Assembly do establish and confirm Mr. Joseph Swe(e)tland of Hebron to be Captain of the North Company or Train Band in the Town of Hebron and order that he be commissioned accordingly."

Captain Swe(e)tland died on September 6, 1749, at the age of 65 years and 10 months, at Hebron, CT. He is buried at Hebron (Andover) CT. After the death of Joseph, Mercy remarried to Lieutenant Henry Woodward. Mercy died April 26, 1761, age 83. She is buried at Hebron, CT.

Among the Continental organizations authorized by Congress in 1777, was a Corps of "Artificers", to be commanded by Jeduthan Baldwin of MA, who signs himself as "Col. of Engineers and Lieut. Com'd of Artificers". In the roster of this regiment we find enrolled Aaron Sweetland, Clerk; term, war; residence, Salisbury.

Aaron served two terms of enlistment as a soldier in the Revolutionary War. The official records of the Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D.C., state that he first enlisted from Sharon, CT, in May, 1775, as a private in the Company commanded by Captain Amos Chappell, under Colonel Hinman, and was discharged in November, 1775. He enlisted again in May, 1780, and served fourteen months as a sergeant in the Company commanded by Captain Painter, under Colonel Baldwin. The only battle in which he is reported as having part is Fort St. John. While living at Cincinnatus, NY (may 18, 1818), made application for a pension as a soldier of the Revolution. This was granted and after his death on March 4, 1819, the pension was paid to his widow, Lois Allen Swe(e)tland, until her death on March 23, 1854.

William graduated at Middlebury College (VT) in 1808, and entered the law office of Z.R. Shepherd, Esq., where he studied law for three years. He moved to Plattsburg, NY in 1811, and was admitted to the bar, and made a brilliant reputation. After his death on January 1, 1864, the Clinton County Bar published a memorial containing over 50 pages, extolling his many virtues, and showing the high esteem in which he was held by his associates. He was President of the Board of Trustees of the Plattsburg Academy, also President of the Plattsburg and Montreal Railroad Company.

William's former residence became an historical museum. In the library of that house is a fine oil portrait of Judge William Swe(e)tland, attached to which is a remarkable tribute to him as a most distinguished citizen and jurist.

William resided at Plattsburg during the War of 1812. Following the Battle of Plattsburg in 1814, some British officers, captured in battle, were paroled in the town. One of these officers (name unknown) became an intimate friend of Judge Swe(e)tland. When these officers were released at the close of the war, this friend gave him as a parting gift a pair of silver-tipped ivory-handled razors in a leather case. Later the Judge gave these razors to his half-brother Harmon. Harmon later gave the razors to his grandson, Roger W. Swe(e)tland, who still later gave them to his grandson, Mark W. Swe(e)tland.

Married Susan Agnes Thomas (born October 28, 1836, at Friendship, NY; died January 16, 1892) on December 23, 1860. Susan was the third daughter of Reverend Benjamin (born May 26, 1808) and Catherine (Gorton) Thomas (born June 12, 1808; died April 17, 1884) (Reverend Thomas was the first pastor of the Harrison Valley, PA, Baptist Church, to which he came from Belmont, NY, in 1851. He purchased a farm of 60 acres about a mile and a half east of Harrison Valley, on the road to Westfield. There he lived, serving for all of his vigorous years as regular pastor of the church and even in his old age as supply pastor, until his death, on February 23, 1888.) Austin and Susan lived at Harrison County, PA., where he died on November 28, 1899.

Austin was a mechanic, worked first at the trade of cooper, and later as blacksmith. During the Civil War he and his brother, Mulford Reed, enlisted in the 189th Regiment, NY Volunteers, where Austin attained the rank of corporal. He and Mulford were tent mates and were both present at the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox. John H. Thomas, Susan's brother (born September 12, 1841), served his term of enlistment in the Civil War, then re-enlisted as a veteran in the 53rd Pennsylvania, and was mortally wounded at the battle of Cold Harbor, dying June 17, 1864, at Harwood Hospital, Washington, D.C.

In approximately 1888, Austin moved to Coudersport, PA, where he had an unsatisfactory partnership with a Dr. Mattison, but soon "bid off" one of the "Star Mail Routes", running each way daily, a stage between Coudersport and Westfield. He later ran a similar route between Coudersport and Cross Fork, well down the present Jersey Shore Pike. During this time he moved from Coudersport to Westfield. The stage business did not prove very profitable and Austin soon sold it out and bought the combined cheese factory, shingle mill and feed mill at Harrison Valley from Peter Leonard, which he later dubbed "the old ranch". Both Austin and Susan died there; Austin on November 28, 1899 and Susan on January 16, 1892. It was in this dwelling that Mark Wallace Swe(e)tland was born.

Soon after Austin moved back to Harrison Valley, he was elected

Justice of the Peace and re-elected continuously until the time of his death. He was also elected Treasurer of Potter County for one term, the most remunerative job he ever held.

Lorenzo Dow fought on the Union side in the Civil War, as a Private for one year in Company E, 123rd Regiment, Ohio Valley Infantry, was taken prisoner and spent months in Andersonville prison camp. Lorenzo was a medic during the war, was wounded in the leg, and was left on the battlefield with no assistance. When gangrene set in, he is reputed to have amputated that leg. Following the Civil War, he became a medical doctor by pursuing an education at the Eclectic Medical Institute at Cincinnati, Ohio. Frederick Lorenzo Dow Sweetland -- In Memoriam

Frederick Lorenzo Dow Sweetland across his life worked as a newspaper editor and publisher (Orient, South Dakota Argus and Harold, South Dakota, Journal, as well as a newspaper at Virgil, South Dakota), as an abstractor (Miller, South Dakota) and as a rural mail carrier at Orient, South Dakota.

Frederick Lorenzo Dow Sweetland, a son of a seemingly proud, aristocratic father and a mother appearing to be quiet and mild-mannered, was born into a family always on the move. He was naturally gifted with music and had a flair for word usage; he tended to be introspective and quiet -- until someone's remark sounded to him like an insult. His particular interest was newspaper work and he was editor and publisher of weekly newspapers during the early 1900's at various locations.

His kindness showed when one of his children would be feeling miserable with headache, earache, or other real or imagined pain, and a gentle touch of a hand was needed to smooth the forehead and brush the hair back. He might also sing a soft child-size melody to add to the ease.

Fred was also known in the family to be the most successful gardener in town -- plowing, planting, weeding, bugging and gathering -- before and after his mail route run. Name anything that grows -- except trees -- and he had grown it. He used a horse and single-blade plow -- never a tractor. Children and grandchildren have seen him walking behind this plow with the reins somehow wrapped around his shoulder and back while he guided the plow with his hands and kept the horse moving and the soil turning.

Fred was always a responsible person when it came to the care of his livestock. There was a time when the family owned a cow to produce the milk used by the family (the sale of milk also helped pay for extras, such as piano lessons). The teams of horses used for delivering rural mail in the winter time were well taken care of. His customers along the route could count on him to bring groceries and stamps, and the favor was returned with gifts of farm produce, his preference being buttermilk.

Married in his early 30's he gave up the weekly newspaper for the better-paying job of rural mail carrier. His formal education ended at the eighth grade. Being the owner and publisher of a small town weekly newspaper was a money-losing business. He put behind him the thing he was good at and that he enjoyed and took on a job not to his liking, and he did it well. He risked his life several times during the winters he carried mail, but the mail went out in all conditions.

Frederick is known to have admitted that his marriage and family kept him from becoming a "drifter". And he knew his Rose was a special woman -- that she was stable without being stolid. (Many is the child who got rapped for referring to mom as "Ma" or "her".) One time is remembered when he slipped back to his wandering ways and left home -- but was back with the family after someone said they had seen him walking along the railroad tracks north out of town.

Putting up with outdoor hazards was not all he had to bear -- ridicule from church and other "authorities", his oldest son, and "upstanding" members of the community, brought about by susceptibility to alcohol, was a constant factor, both in his life and the life of his family. He knew his family of wife and children were looked down on. He also knew and appreciated the times when one of those children would bring him home -- out of respect and affection, not pity -- on those occasions when he had had too much to drink. It was the cause of family disruptions and would forever play a large part in the future of his children; just as the intellectual side of his nature would.

In many ways Frederick Lorenzo Dow was a strong and steady person, but like too many humans he thought he was not, and that he had been judged to be weak. His children see him as different people -- that he taught them how to appreciate beginning and growing things, the value of each person as a singular being and contributing to the completeness of the whole circle; how to understand things of nature; how to recognize human suffering; to endure pain and humiliation and get above it. A puzzle -- how can this quiet, gentle man who can defend his wife or children so strongly be the same man who goes after one of the children with a stove poker? He is the father of great and good children and they are glad he is their father -- he left them with much to grow on. A special kind of human father.

Frederick Lorenzo Dow, like most human beings, was a complex personality, formed by the complex of events which shaped his early and later life. Unfortunately, with Daddy, as with most persons, one did not appreciate the good along with the bad, until after his death, when time and introspection had allowed those around him to think of all the good things his life had brought and allow the negative things to be placed in their proper perspective.

Rose Margaret (Anglin) Sweetland -- In Memoriam

Rose Margaret (Anglin) Sweetland was an amazing individual whose major occupation throughout most of her adult life turned around attempting to house, clothe and feed fourteen (14) children (as many as ten (10) at home at one time), sometimes on as little as $100 per month. In order to do this (as though caring for 10 children at once were not enough) she also attempted to raise additional money by such things as baking for the local restaurant early in the morning and then preparing for the school lunch program, too.

When her older children were ready for high school and there was no high school at Orient, South Dakota, Rose (Anglin) Sweetland organized the petition drive to induce the people of Orient to tax themselves to create a high school. Her children were in the first graduating class from Orient High School in 1935 and among the last to graduate in 1957. (The Orient High School closed in 1958.)

Frederick Lorenzo Dow and Rose Margaret moved to Aberdeen, Brown County, South Dakota in 1957. From then until 1965, Rose dealt with her children and grandchildren who were going to Northern State College.

Rose (Anglin) Sweetland never stopped growing. She was a voracious reader and did an extremely good job of self-education.

Rose was a very proud woman, but frequently had to humble herself with storeowners and others in order to clothe and feed her brood. No sacrifice was too great for her children. Many times she must have been at wit's end to provide things for her children which they felt they absolutely had to have. It must have been a frustrating and humiliating experience for her not to be able to provide them.

Unfortunately, her children, like most children, never really understood or acknowledged her sacrifices in their behalf. Rose Margaret could have been the model for the song "I Am Woman". She strived much throughout her life for the benefit of her children and never quit worrying about them to the last.

William Burton Sweetland -- In Memoriam

William Burton Sweetland was born on June 3, 1917, the first child of what would become a family of fourteen (14). As happens too often, he would, in time, feel the responsibility of being the oldest in the family, which means setting a good example, serving as a role model for the rest, and, in this case serving as a surrogate father for the younger ones. William took this charge seriously. Also, as he got older, he was the helper and protector of his mother. It was to Bill that Mom turned whenever there was a problem which she could not handle alone. More often than not, he solved the problem. Also, it was to Mom that Bill looked whenever he needed a pat on the back.

Bill was in the unenviable position of being the oldest brother with a family of his own at the same time some of his younger brothers and sisters were not much older than his oldest children. The pressures on him must have been extreme. At the very time when the job and his own family placed the greatest demands on his time and attention, he was also attempting to meet the demands placed on him from his mother and younger brothers and sisters. It is one of life's tragedies that we seldom recognize what should be easily recognized problems while they are developing.

In all things -- sports, entertainment, career, family -- to which Bill committed himself, the commitment was wholehearted and unstinting. He finished what he began.

His military record in World War II was one of bravery and progress. He was one of the first to enlist. During the War he rose from Private to the rank of Captain. Citations included the EAME Theater Ribbon with Bronze Star; Asiatic-Pacific Ribbon;

American Defense Ribbon; Bronze Star Medal; Unit Citation Victory Medal. His tour of duty included Washington, D.C., Alaska, and England, where he was attached to the 901st Engineer Corps of the Army Air Force.

Although his formal education stopped after high school graduation, he accomplished his goal of owning a weekly newspaper and doing what he was especially talented for and enjoyed. He was one of the best of editors and publishers because he understood and appreciated the influence of the written word. He felt as comfortable discussing politics with government officials as he did writing his weekly "folksy" columns when his readers were usually left with something to think about.

He was generous to the point of it being a fault, unable to say no to a request for his time or money. No attempt was made to repay those favors until the last few months of his life when a sister suggested recipients ought to respond to his needs; a sad commentary on those of us who benefitted from his generosity.

Bill was a gentle, sensitive, highly intelligent, strong-bodied man of deep religious faith, wanting nothing but the best for his two families -- and suffering greatly with an inner turmoil for his entire life. He was not ashamed of his sentimentality -- such as the happy, tearful time when he confided to Mom that he and Ellen were expecting their first child; or the crushing loss of their first daughter; or the time when he was sent to end the life of a pet dog, and came home crying, the dog following him with part of an ear missing, and saying he couldn't do it.

He accomplished many things and won awards in all that he did -- sports, military, career -- but for him, his family was the single most important thing he ever did. This was uppermost in his mind when he said goodbye to his Mother for the last time and he knew he would not live much longer. He set out to drive those hundreds of miles, in weakened condition, in a battered car, to be with them.

William Burton is remembered with love and admiration for all the good and unselfish thoughts and acts aimed at making life better or easier for others, for his devotion to God and family. Seeing the whole picture, he accomplished so much during a short lifetime.

7b. Salmon Peter. (Peter Salmon, Jr (p.208); Peter, Joseph, William, John, Isaac) Born September 4, 1792, at Hebron, CT. Married Betsey Talcott (born 1795; died at age of 76). Lived near Conneaut, O., in 1812, and it was from this place that Salmon made the dangerous trip across Lake Erie in a dug-out canoe in September, 1817, which is recorded in the History of the State. He was an active and impulsive man. While on a visit to Boston, MA, on July 4, 1827, he was killed by the bursting of a cannon that he had volunteered to fire. His widow lived at Bristol, O. She afterward married Isaac M. Martin and moved to North Madison, O., where she died on May 12, 1871.

(The following is a recounting of the unanticipated canoe trip across Lake Erie by Salmon Peter, as reported in "Swetland Lore", January, 1987, by Mark W. Swetland, Jr.)

"It was a beautiful morning in September, 1817, and Salmon Swe(e)tland, of Conneaut, on the Ohio shore of Lake Erie, had risen at the earliest dawn to enjoy his favorite amusement of hunting deer. This exciting sport he had been accustomed to follow with a friend and neighbor, who by the aid of dogs, would drive the deer into the lake, where Swe(e)tland would pursue them in his canoe and shoot them without difficulty.

On the present occasion he had left his cabin without his coat or waistcoat, to listen for the baying of the dogs as they drove the deer. The welcome sound soon greeted his ears, and he was surprised to find that a noble buck had already taken the water, and was some little distance out in the lake. In the enthusiasm of the moment he threw his hat upon the beach, jumped into his canoe, and put off after the animal with every nerve thrilling with intense interest in the pursuit. The wind, which had been blowing steadily from the south during the night, had now increased to a gale, but he was too intent upon securing the valuable prize which was breasting the waves in advance to heed the dictates of prudence.

The race promised to be a long one, for the deer was a powerful animal, not to be easily beaten by a log canoe and a single paddle. A considerable distance from the land had been attained, and the canoe had already shipped a heavy sea, before he overtook the deer, who turned and headed for the shore. Upon tacking to pursue him, Swe(e)tland was at once apprised of the danger by the fact that, with his utmost exertions, he not only made no progress in the desired direction, but on the contrary, was drifting further out to sea.

He had been observed in his outward progress by his neighbor, as well as by his own family, and as he disappeared from sight, considerable apprehension was felt for his safety. The alarm was soon given in the neighborhood, and it was decided by those competent to judge that his return would be impossible, and, unless help could be afforded him he was doomed to perish at sea. Actuated by those generous impulses which often induce men to risk their own lives to save those of others, three neighbors - Messers. Gilbert, Cousins and Belden - took a light boat and started in search of the wanderer. They met the deer returning but could see nothing of their neighbor and friend.

They made stretches off shore in the probable range of the fugitive, until they reached a distance of five or six miles from land, when, meeting with a heavy sea, in which they deemed it impossible for a canoe to live, and seeing no signs of it on the vast expanse of waters, they reluctantly, and not without difficulty and danger, returned to shore, and Swe(e)tland was given up as lost.

Meantime the object of their search was laboring at his paddle, in the vain hope that the wind would abate, or that aid might reach him from the shore. One or two schooners were in sight in the course of the day, but notwithstanding he made every effort to attract the attention of their crews, he failed to do so.

For a long time the shore continued in sight, and as he traced its dim and fast-receding outline, and recognized the spot where stood his cabin, within whose precincts were the cherished objects of his affection, now doubly dear from the prospect of losing them forever, felt that the last tie which united him in companionship with his fellow man was about to be dissolved and the world, with all its busy interests, forever hidden from his sight. Fortunately he possessed a cool head and a stout heart, which united to a considerable share of physical strength and power of endurance, eminently fitted him for any emergency. He was a good sailor and his experience taught him that 'while there is life there is hope'. That experience taught him also, as the outline of the far-off shore disappeared from his sight, that his only expedient was to endeavor to reach the Canadian shore, a distance of fifty miles.

It was now blowing a gale, and the sea was evidently increasing, so that it required the most incredible exertion on his part to trim his uncouth vessel to the waves. He was obliged to stand erect, and move cautiously from one end to the other, well aware that one end of the paddle, or a tottering movement would bring his voyage to a sudden termination. Much of his attention was likewise required in bailing out the canoe, which he managed to do with one of his shoes, a substantial pair of stoggies. Hitherto he had been blessed with the light of day, but to add to his distress, night was fast approaching, when he could only depend upon a kind providence to guide him over the dark waste of waters.

The sky, too, began to be overcast, and an occasional star which glistened through the haze was all the light afforded him through the long and fearful night. Wet to the skin by the constant spray; part of the time in water half way up to his knees; so cold that his blood seemed chilled in his veins, and almost famished with hunger, he felt that death was preferable to such long-continued suffering, and nothing but the thought of his family sustained him in his exertions to keep his boat trimmed and headed for the land.

When morning dawned the outline of the Canada shore greeted his eyes, and he found he had made land in the vicinity of Long Point. Here he met with another difficulty, in an adverse wind and heavy breakers, but the same hand which had sustained him thus far guided him in this emergency, and after thirty hours of unremitting and incredible exertions, he succeeded in landing safely. What his emotions were on again treading the 'green and solid earth', we shall not attempt to inquire; but his trials were not yet ended. He found himself faint with hunger, and exhausted with fatigue, at the distance of forty miles from any human habitation, while the country that intervened was a desert, filled with marsh and jungled thickets, from which nothing could be obtained to supply his wants. These difficulties, together with the reduced state of his strength, made his progress toward the settlement slow and toilsome. On his way he found a quantity of goods which had been thrown ashore from the wreck of some vessel, which, though they afforded him no immediate relief, were of material service.

After a long and weary march through the wilderness, he arrived at length at the settlement, where he was received and treated with great kindness and hospitality by the people. When his strength was sufficiently recruited, he procured a boat and went in search of his goods. These he found and brought off. He then started overland for Buffalo, where he disposed of his treasure, and with the proceeds furnished himself with a complete outfit, and finding the Traveler Captain Charles Brown, from Conneaut, in the harbor, he engaged passage on board of her.

The captain and crew had heard of his disappearance, and looked upon him as one risen from the grave. His story was so astonishing as scarcely to be credible, but he was there in person to verify it; it could not be doubted.

Within a day or two he was on his way to join his family, who he was informed by the captain, had given him up for dead and were trapped in deepest despair. His feelings can be easily imagined as he approached the vicinity of that home which he had expected never again to behold.

When the packet arrived opposite the house, the crew gave three, long, and hearty cheers and fired guns from the deck in token of joy, which led his family to anticipate his return. On landing, he found that his funeral sermon had been preached, and had a rare privilege of seeing his own widow clothed in the habiliments of deep mourning."

("In addition to the foregoing facts, it may be said that the buck for which Swe(e)tland started was killed on his return to shore, and his skin was used as a cover for a trunk. The trunk is now in the possession of a family at Conneaut, and we allude to it in order to offer the suggestion that it be obtained for preservation by the Historical Society of Ohio.")
