

THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN

(COMPRISING IRELAND)

Ancient and Modern History,

*As far as it respects the Physical Characteristics
Agricultural Condition & Statistics, &c. &c.*

BY

THEO^S. WRIGHT, ESQ;

of Trinity College Cambridge.

Embellished with a Series of Views from Original Drawings

BY W. BARTLETT, ESQ;

BOOK 11. The population, in 1821, consisted of one hundred and sixty-two males, one hundred and fifty-five females; total, three hundred and seventeen.

Population.
Soil.

The parish is small, and lies very low; the soil, in some parts, heavy but good. It has but one manor, called Bradwell Hall.

Bradwell
Hall.

Bradwell Hall stands near the church, and formerly had a park. Not being mentioned in Domesday-book or the Red-book of the exchequer, it is conjectured to have included, or constituted, what are mentioned as encroachments on the king's demesne lands in Kelvedon. In the reign of King John, a family named Daggeworth held this manor, and, in the following reign, Osbert Daggeworth had free warren in Bradwell and in Dagworth in Pebmarsh, and a license for himself and heirs to hunt in the forest of Essex. In 1383 this estate was granted to Sir John Sutton, who is said to have holden it of the king in capite, as of the honour of Peverel. Ten years afterwards, it was in the possession of Sir John Hende, or Hinde, a rich alderman of London, of which city he was sheriff in 1381, and lord mayor in 1391 and 1404. He was a great benefactor to Coggeshall Abbey; in gratitude for which, they engaged to celebrate his obit with the solemnity of a founder. His eldest son, John Hende, Esq., was sheriff of Essex in 1413 and 1447, and died in 1461, leaving his mother, and a second John Hende, Esq., his brother, who was sheriff of the county in 1456, and died in 1464; and Joan, daughter of the elder brother, became the heiress general to both, and brought a vast estate in marriage to Walter Writtle, Esq., of a very ancient family, descended from Ralph Fitz-Ralph, Esq., who had a grant of the manor of Writtle from Margaret, countess of Galloway, and from thence took his surname. From defect of heirship, these possessions afterwards became the property of John Basset, Esq., of Great Chishul, in right of his wife, daughter of William Andrews, Esq., and Amicia, sister of Sir John Hinde. Sir John Smyth, of Cressing Temple, also laid claim to this great inheritance, as the descendant of Alice, daughter of John Hende, alderman of London; but the estates were confirmed to the first claimant. John Basset was descended from the noble family of the Bassets, of the south. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Gregory, who married Margaret, daughter of Robert Forster, Esq., of Birch, by whom, on his death, in 1528, he left Dorothy, his only daughter, at that time only one year old. His widow was, after his death, twice married, first to William Ayloff, of Great Braxted, Esq., and afterwards to Eustace Sulyard, Esq., of Runwell. Thomas Bonham, Esq., of Kent, procured the wardship of the great heiress Dorothy Basset, and, as her guardian, kept his first court here in 1531. He procured her to be married very young to his son, Robert Bonham, Esq., who had by her Jeremy and Charles, and two daughters; Mary, married to Andrew Clarke, Esq., of Bocking, and Elizabeth, the wife of John Filiol, Esq., of Old Hall, in Raine. Charles, his second son, married Jane, daughter of Gilbert Songar, and had an only daughter, Dorothy, married to Sir John Selby.

The Saxon word wic signifies a village, castle, farm-house, or dairy; the true signification to be determined by the circumstance and situation of the place. The first part of the name is said to be Paaz, (Saxon) a way or path, but this etymology is doubtful: Norden derives the name from the family of the Pates, of the time of Edward the Second; but this name occurs in records of a much earlier date, and it does not appear that the Pates ever had an estate here.

Pattiswick, as a member of Feering, belonged to Westminster Abbey till the dissolution of monasteries. By reference to ancient writings, it appears that Simon Betail, lord of Wivenhoe, in the thirtieth of King Henry the Third, had free warren in Pateswik, Stisted, and Wivenhoe.* And in the forty-ninth of the same reign, Sir Theobald de Fering † had free warren in Patiswick. In 1377, John Sewale, Esq., of Coggeshall, held here, under the abbot of Westminster, one carucate of land: and the greater part of the parish seems to have been held, under the same abbot, by the Hende family, of whom Sir John Hende died in 1418, possessed of the manor of Picots and other lands here. John Hende, Esq., the eldest son, died here in 1461, leaving an only daughter, wife of Walter Writtle, Esq., who, in her right, inherited this and other great estates. His son John dying under age, they devolved to his kinsman, John Basset, and were in possession of his son Gregory at the time of his death, in 1528. Some of these lands in Pattiswick, Bocking, and Cressing, are stated to have been holden of the earl of Essex, and others of the prior of St. John, of Jerusalem. After the dissolution of the bishopric of Westminster, this manor of Pattiswick was given, with that of Feering, to the bishop of London.

The subordinate manor of Pattiswick took the name of Picots, or Pigots, from its ancient owners. Edward Fabian, Esq., died possessed of this estate in 1561: William Fabian was his son. It was the property of Sir Edmund Huddleston in the reigns of Queen Elizabeth and King James the First; and in 1623, his son and heir, Henry, jointly with Sir Robert Huddleston, Knt., sold it to John Darcy, Esq., serjeant at law, and it passed by will to Sir Thomas Darcy, of Braxted Hall. On the death of Sir George Darcy, unmarried, it came to his three sisters, coheireses,—Frances, married to Sir William Dawes, Bart., afterwards archbishop of York; Mary, to Richard, or Thomas Boteler, Esq.; and Elizabeth, to William Pierpont, Esq.: these three coheireses sold the estate, in 1703, to Herman Olmius, Esq., who, in 1704, gave it to his son, John Olmius, Esq., grandfather of Lord Waltham, of New Hall. Picots.

The capital messuage called Pattiswick Hall was formerly enclosed in an extensive park: Oldfield Grange estate belonging to Osgood Hanbury, Esq., Woodhouse farm, and Stanstead lordship, and other estates, extend into this parish. Hall and Woodhouse.

* Cart. Antiq. 30 Henry III. m. 9.

† Idem, 48 Henry III.