I did not trace this Belden-Baildon line. It's pretty well known. I use it as a "clue" not as fact. But maybe it will help. This line should be from Sarah Belden, daughter of your Samuel, back as far as my database has on that line.

Again, just use as a guide - not sure of its accuracy. I think it's 20 pages long. I just copied from FTM & pasted in, so it's not pretty!

Very good. As you could expect, I am very interested in following the findings in #7 & #8 below. Also, I really have a feeling that (#7) Beldon or Baidon could be a source for us to connect the families back to England and possibly beyond.

 you appear to be descended from Henry

4. At the risk of sounding insensitive, I was just wondering if you know anything about the name "Lucky Boy Hendee" above? Considering the fact that

7. "I have a lot of information on the Belden/Baildon family. I'm told that Belden was originally Baildon (& some other spellings) back to England where there's a Baildon Hall."

Hannah (Hendee) Belden, the daughter of Richard Hendee (b.1611 or 1631) and Hannah Elderkin (b.1634), married

Samuel Belden 14 Jan 1684/85. Hannah Hendee (b. 1634) was the daughter of the John Elderkin who built the three legged chair in my original email.

The question of the birthdate for the Richard Hendee who married Hannah Elderkin is one of the most controversial questions among Hendee researchers. Some fairly reputable sources cite 1611 and some cite 1630 or 1631. Some sources assign the same marriage dates and same children to both Richards. Your Belden information might help shed light on this question. Please send me anything you have that might help answer these questions along with the sources of that information.

I have quite a bit of information on the descendants of Samuel Belden and Daniel Belden.

8. The names Handy, Hendy and Hendee are another problem in research. There are some researchers who believe the original Richard who came to New England used the name Handy (although) some Hendee research in England on his ancestors would suggest Hendee instead.

WEB site research quickly shows many instances of individuals with the same birth, marriage, death and ancestry information but some carry the name Handy and others are named Hendee.

Some Handy descendants insist that Hannah Elderkin never married a Handy. Actually, the Handy family was based in Sandwich, Massachusetts and the Hendee family was based in Windham, Connecticut. I tend to base my family name spellings on these locations which means I go with Hendee. To confuse things further, there were two or three lines that changed their last name from Hendee to Handy in the 1800's.

"Genealogists are uncertain as to Hannah Handy's maiden name but one thing is certain, 'It is not Elderkin.' [Source: The diary of the Rev. Benjamin Fesseden]

Subject: Some Hendee Updates -
Dave Petrie

Happy New Year
Hendee people.

I have recently been working with Paul E. Hendee from Florida on the Hendee family's earlier generations in New England. With Paul's help, I have found some interesting bits of information on John Elderkin and family. If you are descended from one of the Richard Hendees, Jonathan Hendee, Deacon Caleb Hendee or their descendants, John Elderkin b,1616 is likely your GGGGGGG, GGGGGGGG, or GGGGGGGGGG grandfather since his daughter, Hannah Elderkin, married

Richard Hendee in 1661.

1. The John Elderkin
Great Chair + Photos:

“A treasure you’ll find at the Milwaukee Art Museum: One of the oldest known pieces of American furniture to survive. Let me say that again: At the Museum is one of the oldest known pieces of American furniture. The dramatic chair was made sometime in the mid-1600s in Connecticut or Massachusetts. Of course, at the time of its construction, its maker would have identified himself and the style of this chair as English. And yes, three-legged chairs of this type were not uncommon in England, but on the faraway shores of New England, this Great Chair was a great novelty. I love this wacky chair. It has a walrus chair. It has a bold three-legged shape, stylish turned elements, and chip carving along its arms. Its survival, stature, and detailed ornament mark it as an exceptionally important piece of furniture in the period. It is from a time and place (early Colonial New England) when just the very fact of having a chair was exceptional. Most people sat on simple benches or stools, and only the patriarch of a wealthy family would have had access to a status symbol such as this Great Chair. The chair is made of white oak, red oak, cherry, and ash, but the effect of the wood may have been amplified by black and red paint. The possible maker, John Elderkin [1616-1687], a house carpenter who came to America in 1637, may have based it on his knowledge of architectural building techniques. We see drop finials on a 1720s Connecticut home that reflect the architectural styles popular in the 17th century. The ornamental drops and finials on the Great Chair match this bold decoration very closely. The Great Chair is owned by the Milwaukee-based Chipstone Foundation and is on view in the Decorative Arts Gallery on the Milwaukee Art Museum's Lower Level." 2, Mark Twain and John Elderkin the 8th at the Lotos Club in New York City + Photos:

There was a club in New York City [Lotos Club - see below] that gave a dinner for Samuel Clemons (Mark Twain) around 1900. A group picture was taken of the event. It included a John Elderkin, actually John Elderkin the 8th. He was a direct descendent of our John Elderkin (father of Hannah Hendee and father-in-law of Richard Hendee b.1630-31[?]).

HIS was descended from our John Elderkin and his second wife, Elizabeth Drake, making him a "half" relative. As close as I can figure, he would be my wife's sixth half cousin three times removed. Not exactly kissing cousins but the picture is interesting none the less. I have attached the picture and some slides showing how John Elderkin the 8th is descended from our original John Elderkin. The original John Elderkin would have been my wife's GGGGGGGG grandfather through the marriage of his daughter, Hannah, and Richard Hendee. See the following site - <https://archive.org/details/americanas/and%5B%5D=Elderkin>” [David Petrie email to Paul Hendee 28 Jan 2017] “David: True - This is very interesting and important information. Wonderful documentation! I will place it into an appropriate file.” [Paul E. Hendee - phendee@att.com] “For current information on the Lotos Club, see its WEB site at <http://www.lotosclub.org/>” [David Petrie - dapwyn@aol.com].

The Lotos Club: “The Lotos Club, one of the oldest literary clubs in the United States, was founded on March 15, 1870, by a group of young writers, journalists and critics. Their idea was that The Lotos Club should be different – more inclusive, more comfortable, more active and more enjoyable – than other clubs available in New York City at that time. This is a philosophy that has guided Lotos ever since. To convey the idea of “rest and harmony,” the Club took its name from “The

TOOK ITS NAME FROM THE Lotos Eaters” by Alfred Lord Tennyson. Mark Twain, a lifelong member and frequent guest, called Lotos
“The Ace of Clubs.”
Lotos’ first president,
New York Leader editor
DeWitt Van Buren, died after only a few months in office, and its second, New York City Mayor A. Oakey Hall, was indicted along with Boss Tweed. New York Tribune editor Whitelaw Reid was elected president in 1872, and made Lotos a success.
He inaugurated Ladies’ Days – then a rarity among New York clubs – and started the hospitable tradition of hosting lavish dinners for distinguished figures from all walks of life.
These celebrations,
now called State Dinners, have been held for W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, Oliver Wendell Holmes,
Ulysses S. Grant,
Woodrow Wilson,

Enrico Caruso, George M. Cohan, Amelia Earhart, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, Robert Moses, Harry S. Truman, Leonard Bernstein, Robert Frost, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Beverly Sills, Margaret Mead, Linus Pauling, Saul Bellow, Joe DiMaggio, Roy Lichtenstein, Arthur Miller, Dave Brubeck, Angela Lansbury and more than a dozen New York City mayors and many other men and women of achievement. The Club's first home was a modest row house on Irving Place, next to the old Academy of Music. In 1877, Lotos took up residence in a mansion at 149 Fifth Avenue, and then, sixteen years later, moved to 556-58 Fifth Avenue, a double brownstone just south of 46th Street. With financial backing from Club member Andrew Carnegie the Club

... Carnegie, the club moved again in 1909 to a commodious, custom-built clubhouse at 110 West 57th Street. Lotos has resided in its current home at 5 East 66th Street since 1947. A fine example of French Renaissance architecture, the building was designed by Richard Howland Hunt and built in 1900 as a belated wedding gift for Maria Shepard, a granddaughter of William H. Vanderbilt, and her husband
William Jay Schieffelin, who were married in 1891. Decorative embellishments include an elaborate mantel in the Tennyson Room sculpted by Karl Bitter.
The Grill Room features a collection of Lotos State Dinner menus and memorabilia, as well as paintings by James Montgomery Flagg,
Howard Chandler
Christy, and Everett

Raymond Kinstler, which recall the Club's origin as a men's club.
Lotos began its second century with a unanimous vote in May 1977 to extend membership to women.
In 2010, it elected its first female president.
Each year continues to bring a full schedule of stimulating programs, as it has for almost a century and a half.
Members take pride in bringing family and friends for events and for unsurpassed dining in a clubhouse that is comfortable, handsome and appreciated. Lotos has reason to be proud of its past and faces the future with vitality and creativity. In a world of swift and unsettling change, The Lotos Club hopes to remain a small, treasured isle of tranquility and civility.”

See attached pictures for both of the above. In the Lotos Club picture, I believe John Elderkin is the smaller man with glasses standing behind Samuel Clemons - seventh from the left.

Note: Now that I have your attention, can anyone point to a reference where Richard Hendee born 1630-31 is identified as the son of Richard Hendee born 1611? In all my years of Hendee research, I don't think I ever seen such a thing???
